IN THE COUNTY OF WORCESTERSHIRE

The UK's Leading Authority on manorial and feudal titles is the MANORIAL SOCIETY OF GREAT BRITAIN.

www.manorialsociety.co.uk

We, at Manorial Title Register research Manorial and Feudal titles (Lord of the Manor and Barony) for their historical history and lineage of holders. Most manorial titles originated around 1080 and were issued by William the Conqueror to his right hand men in battle.

The term 'Lord of the Manor' came about in the 16th century. Before that the manors and castles with administrative duties were held by barons.

Many titles appear to be dormant and unused for several hundred years, but in reality, this is not the case much of the time. A manorial title found in the historical history via online platforms such as British-History, may look to be dormant as its history is not detailed after a certain date in the past, but the reality is that many titles do have current holders up to today. The Church holds hundreds of titles as indeed Universities up and down the country hold hundreds of titles, families of nobility are sitting on hundreds of titles, some titles are escheat (returned to the Crown) others are held by Parish, Town and County Councils, many titles are held within normal families. There is not any requirement under the law to register a manorial title.

Unfortunately, this has led to several platforms selling titles of which they simply do not own.

If you are interested in purchasing a title from a company/platform, then it is best to refer to our website: www.manorialtitlesbeware.com for free advise and help.

We can research the validity of a title for you.

STONE

Stanes (xi and xiii cent.).

The parish of Stone has an area of 2,516 acres, of which 17 acres are covered by water, 1,405 acres are arable land, 415 permanent grass, and 90 wood. (fn. 1) It is situated immediately south-east of Kidderminster, from which it is divided by the River Stour and by one of its tributaries. There is a rifle range for volunteers on the left bank of the river. Besides the village there are three hamlets: Hoo rook in the west and partly in the foreign of Kidderminster, Dunclent half a mile north of the village, and Shenstone 1½ miles south. The village is in the north-east of the parish, and is 2 miles from each of the stations of Kidderminster and Hartlebury, and on the Kidderminster and Bromsgrove road. From this road Cursley Lane branches off near Mustow Green, and forming part of the eastern boundary of Stone runs south and joins the main road from Kidderminster to Droitwich. The last road, which passes through the west of Stone to Hartlebury, forms the southern boundary of this parish for some distance. Branches from it running in a north-easterly direction cross the parish, one called Stanklin Lane leading to the village of Stone, and the other passing through Shenstone to Chaddesley Corbett. The land rises gradually from the Stour to a height of 287 ft. above the ordnance datum in the east. Stour Hill, a little to the east of the river, is partly in this parish and partly in Hartlebury.

The parish was inclosed under an Act of 1762–3, and the award is dated 20 December 1763. \(fn. 2\) The soil is loamy, lying partly on the Keuper Sandstones and partly on the Bunter Pebble beds. The population is now chiefly engaged in agriculture, the most important crops being wheat, beans, barley and potatoes. Paper and yarn-mills were formerly worked at Hoobrook, but are now disused. There are two schools in the parish, one in the village of Stone, and the other, an infants' school, at Hoobrook. A third school was built at Shenstone in 1882, but never opened for want of funds, and is now used as a barn.

MANORS

Before the Conquest STONE was held as two manors by Tumi and Euchil, but in 1086 Herlebald was holding it as one manor of Urse D'Abitot, \(fn. 3\) from whom the overlordship passed with his other property to the Beauchamps and probably descended with their barony of Elmley Castle \(fn. 4\) (q.v.), although its connexion with the Beauchamp family is not mentioned after the 13th century. The manor was said in 1578, 1618 and 1636 to be held of the Crown as of the hundred of Halfshire in socage by fealty. \(fn. 5\)

Herlebald was succeeded by the family of Stone, who took their name from the manor, although there is no mention of their holding land in the parish until the beginning of the 13th century, when Walter Stone was holding half a knight's fee of William de Beauchamp. \(fn. 6\) This Walter was possibly a son of William de Stanes, who in 1200–1 confirmed a grant made by his father Walter (fl. 1178) and grandfather William of land at Osmerley to the monks of Bordesley. \(fn. 7\) In 1259 a Walter Stone and Aline his wife are mentioned as landowners in Worcestershire, \(fn. 8\) and were probably holding the manor of Stone. They were evidently succeeded by Thomas Stone, whose name occurs on a Lay Subsidy Roll, c. 1280. \(fn. 9\) According to Nash, William Stone held the manor in 1284–5 and Thomas Stone in 1299. \(fn. 10\) By 1327 the manor had passed to Thomas's son Richard Stone, \(fn. 11\) who in that year with his wife Cecilia settled tenements in Stone on their son Richard and his wife Joan. \(fn. 12\) Richard the son probably died in the lifetime of his father, for in 1341 the latter with Cecily his wife settled a messuage and 2 carucates of land in Stone upon Margaret wife of Roger Folliott for life with remainder to Thomas Folliott, Margaret's son, and his wife Elizabeth, who is stated by Habington to have been a daughter of Richard or William Stone. \(fn. 13\) William Fitz Warin, who is mentioned in 1346 as a former owner of the manor, \(fn. 14\) may have obtained it by marriage with a widow of one of the Stones. Thomas Folliott was holding the manor in 1346, \(fn. 15\) and it continued in the Folliott family until the 17th century. Hugh Folliott, grandson or great-grandson of Thomas, \(fn. 16\) was lord of the manor in 1428, \(fn. 17\) and had been succeeded before 1431 by his eldest son Richard. \(fn. 18\) The latter settled it in 1468 on his son Nicholas, \(fn. 19\) \(fn. 19\) from whom it passed to his grandson John Folliott, who died in 1578. \(fn. 20\) After the death of Thomas Folliott son of John in 1617 his son Sir John Folliott, kt., who had married Elizabeth daughter of John Aylmer, Bishop of London, succeeded to the manor, \(fn. 21\) and in 1624 sold it to Sir William Courteen, kt., \(fn. 22\) a prominent merchant. He was succeeded in 1636 by his son William Courteen, \(fn. 23\) who, owing to the repeated losses incurred by his father, became bankrupt in 1643. \(fn. 24\) Stone was probably claimed with his other property by the Committee for Sequestration and was sold to Sir James Rushout, bart., son of John Rushout, a Flemish merchant, who had settled in London. \(fn. 25\) The exact date of the purchase by Sir James is not known, but he was dealing with land at Stone in 1662–3, \(fn. 26\) and was in possession of the manor in 1694. \(fn. 27\) He died in 1697–8,

LORDSHIP OF SHENSTONE

, and was succeeded by his second but eldest surviving son James. \(fn. 28\) On the latter's marriage in 1699–1700 with Arabella daughter of Thomas Vernon the manor was settled upon her. \(fn. 29\) Both Sir James and Arabella died in 1705, and their only son James died in boyhood in 1711. \(fn. 30\) The manor passed to his sister Elizabeth, who married in 1731 Paulett St. John. \(fn. 31\) A settlement of the manor was made upon her at that date. \(fn. 32\)

Elizabeth died without issue in December 1733, \(fn. 33\) and in 1734 St. John sold the manor for £6,500 to Joseph Cox, an attorney of Kidderminster, \(fn. 34\) whose daughter and heir Mary married Stephen Beckingham, and was holding the manor with him in 1738. \(fn. 35\) In 1751 it belonged to Stephen Beckingham and his son Stephen. \(fn. 36\) It had passed before 1762–3 to John Baker, \(fn. 37\) who was lord of the manor in 1808. \(fn. 38\) Property at Stone was apparently held by the Misses Baker in 1868, \(fn. 39\) and they and Mrs. Bernard owned the manor in 1872. It had passed before 1876 to James Holcroft of Red Hill House, Stourbridge. He was succeeded in March 1894 by his brother Charles Holcroft of the Shrubbery, Kingswinford, who was created a baronet in 1905, \(fn. 40\) and is now lord of the manor of Stone.

The manor of DUNCLEN (Duncklen, xvi cent.) belonged before the Conquest to the priory of St. Guthlac, Hereford, and Odo held it of the priory. In 1086 it was held under the priory by Nigel the physician, under whom it was held by Urse. \(fn. 41\) Since in 1212 the fee belonged to Walter de Beauchamp, \(fn. 42\) it is evident that the Urse who held the manor under Nigel was Urse D'Abitot. The overlordship is not again mentioned until 1476, when the manor was said to be held of the Prior of Lewes for the service of one knight. \(fn. 43\)

Dunclent evidently gave its name to the family of Dunclent, who were lords of the manor in the 13th and 14th centuries. About 1280 Robert de Dunclent paid a subsidy of a mark at Dunclent, \(fn. 44\) and in 1284 Mary Dunclent, probably his widow, owned property there.

LORDSHIP OF SHENSTONE

(fn. 45) Clement de Dunclent is the next owner of the manor whose name is known. He seems in 1294 and 1316 to have held it under the Burnells, who in turn held it of Stephen de Bosco. (fn. 46) Clement de Dunclent paid a subsidy of 3s. at Dunclent in 1327, (fn. 47) and his widow Amice was still in possession of a quarter of a knight's fee there in 1346. (fn. 48) John de Dunclent son of Clement was probably lord of the manor in 1351, when he exchanged certain lands in Broom with his brother Edmund and Maud his wife for others in Dunclent, (fn. 49) and he was called lord of Dunclent in 1368. (fn. 50) The family appears to have died out in the 14th century, and the manor probably reverted to the Beauchamps as overlords, being settled, like Rushock, on William Beauchamp Lord Bergavenny. (fn. 51) It then followed the descent of Kidderminster Biset (fn. 52) (q.v.), Lord Bergavenny being the owner in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. It was probably sold after his death in 1586–7, and its descent becomes difficult to trace.

In the Visitation of Worcester, 1569, Elizabeth daughter and heir of John Moore of Dunclent is mentioned as having married John Folliott of Stone, (fn. 53) and Nash also states that Dunclent was at one time held by John Moore. (fn. 54) It afterwards passed to Edmund Brode, who left most of his property, including a park called Dunclent Park, by his will, dated 22 February 1599, to a younger son, Edward Brode. (fn. 55) He sold the manor in 1655 to Thomas Foley, (fn. 56) in whose family it remained (fn. 57) until about 1836, when it was purchased by the late Earl of Dudley. (fn. 58) It now belongs to his son William Humble Earl of Dudley.

SHENSTONE and HOO were regarded as manors during the 17th century. (fn. 59) Land at Shenstone was held in 1431 by Richard Folliott, lord of Stone, by knight service, (fn. 60) and both manors passed with Stone from the Folliott family to Sir William Courteen. (fn. 61) They are not mentioned after 1636. (fn. 62)

The reason why they are not mentioned after 1636 is because the titles remained within the family.

A mill at Stone worth three ounces of silver belonged to the manor in 1086. (fn. 63) Another mill in the parish called 'the water mill of Stone' appears to have belonged to the manor of Dunclent, for it was given by Edmund de Dunclent to his brother John in 1351. (fn. 64)

A disused paper-mill at Hoobrook is the only mill at present in the parish.

PROBLEMS/QUESTIONS

Biography

Sir William Courten or Curteen (1572–1636) was a wealthy 17th century merchant, operating from London. He financed the colonisation of Barbados, but lost his investment and interest in the islands to the Earl of Carlisle.

Sir William Courten was the son of William Courten, by his wife Margaret Casiere, and was born in London in 1572. A younger brother, born in 1581, was named Peter. Their father was son of a tailor of Menin and a protestant. After enduring persecution at the hands of the Spaniards, he escaped to England in 1568; his wife, a daughter Margaret, and her husband Michael Boudean accompanied him.

William was knighted 31 May 1622, and Peter 22 February 1622-3

Courten had a son, Peter, by his first wife, who was made a baronet by James I in 1622 (see Courten baronets); married Jane, daughter of Sir John Stanhope, and died without issue early in 1625. He is usually described as of Aldington, Worcestershire. Courten's second wife was a daughter of Moses Tryon, and by her he had a son, William, and three daughters, Hester (wife of Sir Edward Littleton); Mary (wife of Anthony Grey, 9th Earl of Kent); Anna (wife (1) of Essex Devereux, heir of the 5th Viscount Hereford and (2) of Sir Richard Knightley).

LORDSHIP OF SHENSTONE

.Courten or CURTEENE, SIR William (1572–1636), merchant, was the son of William Courten, by his wife Margaret Casiere, and was born in London in 1572. A younger brother, born in 1581, was named Peter. Their father was son of a tailor of Menin and a protestant. After enduring much persecution at the hands of the Spaniards, he escaped to England in 1568; his wife, a daughter Margaret, and her husband Michael Boudean accompanied him. The refugees at first set up a manufactory of French hoods in Abchurch Lane, London, but afterwards removed to Pudding Lane, where they traded in silk and linen. The son-in-law, Boudean, soon died, leaving a son Peter, and the daughter married a second husband, John Moncy, an English merchant. The father and mother apparently lived till the close of Elizabeth's reign.^[1]

He financed the colonisation of Barbados, but lost his investment and interest in the islands to the Earl of Carlisle.

24 March 1635/6 King Charles II granted a license to six individuals to establish a Huguenot church at Sandtoft, Lincolnshire where services could be held in either English or Dutch, but according to the rites of the established church of England .
